

SCHOLASTIC STANDING RULES

Good Standing:

Students who earn a semester and cumulative GPA of 2.0 or higher are in good standing.

Probation:

Students who have earned 23 or fewer credits at the University of Connecticut and have a semester GPA of lower than 1.8 will be placed on probation.

Students who have earned 24 or more credits at the University of Connecticut and have a semester or cumulative GPA of lower than 2.0 will be placed on probation.

Dismissal:

Students who are on probation for two consecutive semesters, not including summer and winter intersession, are subject to dismissal. However, a student who earns a semester GPA of at least a 2.3, even if their cumulative GPA is less than 2.0, will not be subject to dismissal, though they will be continued on probation.

Please note: First semester Ratcliffe Hicks students are subject to dismissal from the University, if their semester grade point average is less than 1.2.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS WHO ARE SUBJECT TO DISMISSAL

Summer and Winter Intersession Courses

If you are currently enrolled in intersession courses that are in session, you will remain registered for these courses. However, if you are dismissed, your status will be changed to “non-degree.” If you are enrolled in intersession courses that begin after final dismissal decisions are made, you will be dropped from these courses. If you have questions, please contact the Office of the Registrar (www.registrar@uconn.edu) at (860) 486-3331.

Financial Aid

If you have received correspondence from the Office of Student Financial Aid Services (<http://financialaid.uconn.edu>) informing you that did not meet the University’s minimum satisfactory academic progress (SAP) standards please review the correspondence carefully and contact the Office of Student Financial Aid Services for guidance on their appeal process. Please note that Financial Aid and academic dismissal appeal processes are separate and independent.

International Students

If you are an international student you may not continue at the University as a non-matriculated student. Please contact International Student and Scholar Services (<http://iss.uconn.edu/>) or (860) 486-3855 for guidance.

Residence Hall Information

If you attend the Storrs campus and are dismissed from the University of Connecticut, you are not eligible to live on campus. If you currently have housing and you do not appeal your dismissal, or if your appeal is not successful, your room assignment will be canceled. If you are dismissed from the University, or if you decide to withdraw from the university, you may apply for housing upon your readmission, though please be aware that readmitted students are not guaranteed housing. Students who are living on campus at the time of their dismissal must contact their hall director to arrange to check out of their room (<http://reslife.uconn.edu/>).

Readmission after dismissal

If you do not appeal your dismissal or your appeal is unsuccessful and you are dismissed from the University, or if you decide to withdraw from the university after becoming subject to dismissal, you may request an evaluation for readmission at a later date. Students who have been dismissed can apply for readmission no sooner than two semesters following their dismissal. You can apply for readmission through the Dean of Students (<http://dos.uconn.edu>). Readmission is not guaranteed, but will be considered favorably when you show concrete evidence that you can be academically successful. For information regarding enrollment as a non-degree student, go to <http://scholasticstanding.uconn.edu/non-degree/>.

Continuing on Scholastic Probation

If you are approved to continue as a matriculated student, you will remain on scholastic probation while either your semester or cumulative GPA is below 2.0. You may also be subject to additional academic conditions as set down by your dean's designee at the Storrs campus or your Student Service director if you attend a regional campus. If you do not earn a grade point average of 2.0 or higher at the end of the next semester, you will be subject to dismissal again.

Incomplete Grades

Should you have any incomplete marks, such as I, X or N grades on your record, completion of this outstanding work may raise your grade point average above the minimum standards required for you to be in good standing. In such a case, the Registrar will recalculate your GPA and your probationary status will be rescinded. If a grade change puts you in good standing any time during the dismissal review period please email advising@uconn.edu to report your updated status.

Permission to take non-degree coursework

Students dismissed from the University of Connecticut may still have the opportunity to enroll in undergraduate level credit courses at the University as a non-degree (non-matriculated) student. These courses may be used to determine readmission to the University or as transfer credits at another institution.

A University of Connecticut degree-seeking student dismissed from his or her degree program must obtain written permission from that program to register as a non-degree student. Permission is given for up to 8 credits per semester and is required for each semester of non-degree enrollment.

To schedule an appointment to discuss enrolling in classes as a non-degree student, and to obtain permission to register, contact a Non-Degree advisor (<http://scholasticstanding.uconn.edu/non-degree-advisor-contacts/>) at the campus at which you seek to take classes.
